Our euriosity was aroused by two recent stories relating to long-term service by trade union officials locally.

One man had served continuously in the same position for 20 years. Another had 13 years to his credit.

We wondered who is the longest-serving union official in the same capacity?

After half a dozen telephone calls, and a little memory jogging, it seems the honor belongs to 63-year-old Robert Barrie, president of Victoria Labour Council.

He has been president continuously for

In a recent talk to the Canadian Authors Association here Mrs. Christie Harris of Cordova Bay told how she came to write a book a year.

She started as a reporter on the British Columbian in New Westminster; then took up teaching and was inspired by her students to write nine children's stories for The Province in Vancouver.

After that she edited the women's section of the Abbotsford News and wrote literally hundreds of scripts for the CBC. One of these prompted a Toronto publisher to ask her for an historical book for children and Caribou Trail was the result. Later, Mrs. Harris applied the m short story technique to a number of Indian legends and produced Once Upon a Totem, which won an award from the Canadian Association of Children's Librarians. A new historical work, West with the Indian Chiefs, is due for publication next month, and The Raven's Cry, a story of the Haida Indians, will appear in 1966. Mrs. Harris says her five children are an inspiration in seeking story material.

A grand march by Capt. James M. Gayfer, musical instruc-tion officer at HMCS Naden, is one of six Canadian composi-tions recorded recently by the RCA Victor Company. Entitled Royal Visit, it was composed when Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh toured Canada in 1959.

The six Canadian compositions are played on the record by the Cable Concert Band, a symphonic wind ensemble conducted by Howard Cable of Toronto. Mr. Cable's Newfoundland Rhapsody, a compendium of folk songs, is part of the recording.

The companion pieces are Round Dance by John Weirizweig. music professor at the University of Toronto; Stratford Fanfare, composed for the Stratford (Ont.) Festival by Louis Applebaum; River by Night, by Kenneth Campbell of Ottawa, and March of the Canadian Mounties, by Charles O'Neil.

ASTIGMATISM

Nearly nine out of ten people have astigmatism, many without knowing it. Astigmatism causes an uneven focusing of the light rays that enter your eye. The rays of light in one section of a beam are focused at one point but the rays of a section at right angles to this are focused at a different point. Thus a blurred picture or image results. In many cases the image can be made quite clear by a constant focusing of the lens in the eye. This, however, usually causes a great deal of strain, fatigue, soreness of the eyes and frequent headaches. To have comfortable vision and to protect the only pair of eyes that you will ever have, be sure that they are free from this common defect, or that they are properly corrected for it. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least once every two

The decision to soft peddle the contents of the report was presumably prompted by the prime minister's reluctance to alarm the citizenry. At the same time, it was perfectly in keeping with the fact that we must be the only nation on earth which, faced with the most important revolution in its history, can afford the luxury of appointing a royal com-mission to investigate the in-

After 17 months of reconnoitering the dynamics of rebellion, the B and B commis-sioners have come up with a document that contains not a single suggestion on how the pressure might be relieved and equilibrium restored. For the future, we are promised still fatter reports, even more grandiose studies and an avanohe of hearings and consultations.

The ten distinguished Canadians who make up the commission may actually believe that this country can talk it-self into the 21st century (and they may be right), but this is not the mood of their re port, "The crisis has reached a point where there is a danger that the will of people to go on may fail," they write referring of the current state of French-English relations.

R. Scott on the commission is a guarantee that the reluctance to do so was not based on any absence of courage. Instead, the com-missioners must have judged the tension between Quebec and the rest of Canada to be so charged that the injection of specific remedies might have been enough to prompt another round of mail-box ex-

Disadvantage

This leaves English Canada at a serious disadvantage in the current dialogue because, as the commission also notes, the odds are changing. The English - French confrontation is no longer the traditional conflict between a majority and a minority. Instead, it has become "a conflict between two majorities: that which is a majority in all Canada and that which is a majority in the entity of Quebec."

Another warning implicit in the study is that the period of Anglo-Saxon supremacy is running out in this country— e v e n outside Quebec. "Old rical ties and sentimental attachments to Britain seemed to persist more in some re-gions than others," the report states, "but they are not as strong as many French Canadians think, nor are they a considerable influence in Cadian affairs."

Notion Irrelevant

The notion held by so many English Canadians — that the average French Canadian has no more extravagant dream than to live as they do-has be-come irrelevant. The Quebec revolution, like every other popular uprising, is a crusade for individual dignity. It is not an attempt by French Canada to copy English Canada's way of life or to take over its material resources.

Although the commissioners shy away from actually en-dorsing the "two nation" con-cept of federalism, they stress the importance of "a true partnership" between English and French Canada, leaving little doubt that they visualize relationship between equals. The closest the commissioners come to suggesting some way out of the current impasse is to propose what they vaguely describe as a "matching between the minimums of what parks act for British Columbia park. provides for some useful housekeeping within the parks - and leaves their gates wide open for commercial invasion by any interests which can bring sufficient pressure on the cabinet. It does not protect the parks.

Specific clauses lower the barriers. While the bill guarantees that provincial parks would never shrink below the present total area of 6.3 million acres, and could be increased, according to Section 7 of the bill: "The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may cancel or re-establish any park established under this act, and may revise the boundaries of any such park to increase or decrease the area of the park or to consolidate two or more parks or to divide an existing park into two or more parks."

This is full of dangers. If, for instance, within an established park there is a stand of valuable merchantable timber desired by interests which can impose compelling arguments on the cabinet, the clause could be used to "revise the boundaries . . . or increase or decrease the area of the park." Thus the timber stand could cease to be in the park and lose what little protection the act affords.

The sale of irreplaceable parks timber has occurred in British Columbia and could occur again through trading or other arrangements.

The bill also states that no interest in land within certain parks, or the granting, sale or removal of natural resources will be permitted "except as authorized by a valid and subsisting park use permit," Such a permit, says the bill, will not be

THE BILL TO CREATE A NEW granted for uses detrimental to the

But "the minister or his authorized agent may," according to Section 24, "subject to the provisions of this act and upon payment of such fees as may be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, issue a park use permit authorizing, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, a person or persons to do any one or more things for which, under this act, a park use permit is required."

Under such provisions, the inviolability of the parks becomes relative, depending on the point of view, or the possible inclination toward expediency, present at any particular time. If, for instance, the government feels it needs more money, there is sufficient elasticity in the act to acquire cash from natural resources within a park merely by changing boundaries to exclude the area containing the resourcesor by issuing a park use permit.

Public nervousness is not allayed. by memory of the statements by Mr. Kenneth Kiernan, minister of recreation and conservation, a year At that time, the minister sponsored the new bill this week, drew attention to the waste in value when trees were allowed to become over-mature and fall down - the conventional argument of loggers who wish to invade park stands. He also suggested that little in the way of injury to parks arose from supervised mining operations.

The volume of public protest which greeted his point of view at that time may have altered the minister's philosophy. At the same time, obvious loop-holes in an act, which many had hoped would give the parks much greater protection, still leave cause for serious public municipalities has been welcomed and municipalities. by municipal officials with the sense of relief that might be expected. In the squeeze of rising costs, particularly for education, and taxpayers' levies on property, municipal govministerial claims that the junior governments have never had it so good do not answer the hard facts that crop up at the local budget

It was logical, in the face of a large provincial surplus, to ease the plight of the municipalities, and Mr. Bennett deserves credit for seeing the virtue of their requests. But this sudden, off-the-cuff financing measure, coupled with criticisms of the steadily mounting householders' grants, points up the need for a complete review of the whole municipal financing problem.

Municipal grants should not be at the apparent whim of the premier or spring unheralded from a rousing speech or two in the Legislature criticizing government policy. There are basic needs of local government, there are specific sources well we can afford his unplanned of revenue available to it, and there benevolence.

Much the same reasoning applies to the $5 increase for needy pensioners. This again appears to have been a split-second decision on the floor of the House - although Mr. Bennett does not have a record of unthinking acquiescence in demands for money. We are left with the thought that if a certain speech had not been made by a member, the pensioners would not have received their increase. Either their case is just or it is not-acknowledgement of it should not depend on momen-

ALTHOUGH it is hard on the nerves A to wait and watch the Asian crisis without having a full account from the President of his plans, there are good reasons for his not speaking out at this time. The main rea-son is that the President is quite evidently following a policy which combines diplomacy and force. Such a policy cannot be conducted by telegraphing in advi his punches and his political moves. For at this stage in this kind of diplomacy every party is bound to reject every proposal that any other party makes. In the end, the less rejecting there has the less disastrous the situation

In the present situation, the mixture of force and diplomacy cannot follow a rigid formula, but must remain variable and secret before events unfold.

It is a misreading, I believe, of the realities to picture the President as having a clear-cut choice between expanding the war and negotiating peace. He has expanded the war under rigid controls, but he has expanded it. The test of any extension of the war is whether it produces a negotiation. Since a peace cannot be dictated in Asia either by the United States or by China, the real question is how, whether and when the even-tual negotiation can be set going.

No Approach to Answer

We do not come any nearer to finding the right answer either by calling on President to withdraw from South Nam or by calling on him to devastate North Viet Nam. For the President to announce that he intends to devastate North Viet Nam by a rolling bomber offensive would almost surely precipitate China, and probably also the Soviet Union, onto the side of North Viet Nam. It would be a black day in American history if the President adopted this line.

On the other hand, for the President to announce that he wanted to negotiate an American withdrawal would not only cause a collapse of the present govern-ment in Saigon, but it would place large numbers of Viet amese in grave jeop-ardy of their live.

Although I do not share Sen. Thomas Dodd's crusading zeal for ideological globalism, I think he is right in pointing out that there would be grave risk to many who have worked with us if South

THE WORLD OF YEATS

By TONY EMERY

Fruits of a University

AFTER the rude remarks I made about prophets in this space a couple of weeks ago, it is only a trifle inconsistent for me now to remind you of a prophecy I ven-tured to make some years ago, when Victoria College was in the process of becoming the University of Victoria. I said then that the generality of people in Victoria had no

Emery idea of the extent to Emery which the addition of thousands to the student body, and hundreds to faculty and staff, was likely to bring great changes to the community.

Some of these changes are presently occurring, plain for all who travel the road from the Lansdowne Campus to Gordon Head to see, particularly if they choose a time between 20 minutes after and half-past the hour; others are still "in the works"; but already the existence of a greetly enlarged university has begun to produce results which, ten years ago, could not have been foreseen in Vic-

Homage to Greatness

One such result is entitled "The World of W. B. Yeats" to be found in the exhibition now occupying the Centennial Wing of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, Here, in a fas-tidiously selected but comprehensive display, the organizers have paid homage to the greatest poet of those who have used the English language in the first half of this century. Yeats, as the First Secretary of the Irish Embassy reminded us on opening night, was not merely a great Irish poet: he belonged to the world.

My point is, though, that world poet or not, Yeats' hundredth birthday would not have been commemorated in such a fitting and impressive manner if it had not been for the presence in the English department of Robin Skelton and Ann Saddlemyer, the two Canadian scholars in the field of Irish literature.

The idea began with them, but energetic as they undoubtedly are, they could never have carried through the whole program without the exist ence of enthusiastic workers in other staff. If you want to know who helped in this Irish banquet you will find the list of members of the Yeats Festival Committee inside the symposium catalogue which is one of the most impressive by-products of the whole festival, and I hope you will not forget, as you enjoy the fruits of their labors, to spare a thought for the amount of unpaid, spare-time work these selfless toilers have contributed.

Many-Sided Personality

The show is designed to illustrate as many aspects of Yeats' many-sided personality as possible, and it has certainly achieved its aim. It is not easy to decide which feature of the show impresses the visitor most; the sheer quantity of the exhibits; their superb uality, on the whole; the fact that ne bulk of them are lent by Robin. Skelton and Ann Saddlemyer from what must be phenomenal private collections of Yeatsiana; or the number of important loans from galleries and as of international renown.

A k-rge part of the exhibit consists, might be expected, of books, pamphlets, broadsheets and manuscripts. There is enough here to keep the bibliophile busy, the poetry-lover happy, and the fans of Yeats on the frothy limits of ecstasy. But that is by no means all. Yeats was the son of an Irish painter, and the brother of another whose fame extended far be-yond the British Isles: the poet himself studied art at the outset of his career. It is therefore not surprising that the show should contain some masterpieces of drawing, print-making and painting by artists known to or ad-mired by Yeats.

Friends and Mentors

Some of these were his friends and contemporaries: Ricketts and Shan-non, Augustus John, Sturge Moore are a few of these whose typical work is well represented; others were artists of another age, whose influence was none the less compelling for being remote in time. The poet who wrote:

"Gyres run on: When that greater dream had gone Calvert and Wilson, Blake and Claude,

Prepared a rest for the people of God. Palmer's phrase, but after that

Confusion fell upon our thought," was not just putting in names at random to fill out the lines and score points for knowing the U-names. The influence of Blake and his circle is paramount with Yeats, and it is mo admirably displayed in the colored engravings and etchings of Blake, the etchings of Calvert, and the wonderful selections from the work of Samuel Palmer, whose son was one of British Columbia's more distinguished immi-

There is enough in this show to occupy a week of afternoons of careful scrutiny, and even then you won't have seen it all. To get the most out of it buy a copy of the symposium catalogue, the handsomest book yet produced wholly in this province, and read the essays by Ann Saddlemyer, Robin Skelton, Gwladys Downes, Joan Coldwell, David Clark and Liam Miller. This is the first book published for the University of Victoria. Like the exhibition it catalogues, it sets a high

To Watch from Calgary such huge reserves of good health on the Prairies that sedentary observers begin to become a little alarmed them-

PRAIRIE FITNESS

The biggest binge is curling, which reaches its peak at this time of year. In any week in February and March there are 100 bonspiels with from 150 to 500 participants busy in the cities and towns of the Prairies. In the larger cities, every fraternal organization, company recreation association, professional group and union local is running off a bonspiel. Any curler with even a modi-cum of proficiency is likely to be in two or three different competitions at sport. The big leaguers who can throw a 45-pound stone down a 100-foot lane of ice and bring it to a stop gently nudging a dime, are all in the all-star com-petitions. Each province has its galaxy of 100 expert curiers who, on a given night, can beat the best in the world. They prove it continuously by knocking each other out of the provincial and regional championships.

World's Biggest

The extent of the boom may perhaps be illustrated by the fact that the world's biggest curling rink in Calgary, with its 48 sheets, has more curling ite than all the curling rinks in Scotland combined, and the Scots invented the game. In all, there are 412 sheets of ice in Calgary, and almost all of them have gone in within the last decade.

Winnipeg, of course, still leads the west with curling rinks and its annual bonspiel has always been the biggest thing of its kind. But when it comes to enthusiasm, Saskatchewan curlers, probably lead. With farming operations largely shut down for the winter. keeps half the rural population of Saskatchewan occupied.

Growing more rapidly even than the curling is the skiing madness. For places like Alberta and British Columbia, skiing is a natural athletic activity. High mountains and deep snow make it Yet it's booming in Saskatchewan and Manitoba as well.

Manitobans have to go farther, put with more inconvenience and settle for less than Calgarians. But in the hills of western Manitoba, ski resorts are beginning to spring up and the ski addicts of Winnipeg think nothing of taking off for Fort William, Banff or Colorado for a weekend. Regina skiers have managed to put a ski centre to-gether in the Wood Mountain Park, 18 miles northwest of the city. It isn't much of a mountain, but gives Regina the best skiing around.

The skiing boom has created strains In Manitoba, lift accidents everywhere. In Manitoba, lift accidents have got the skiers calling for government safety regulations. In Alberta, the skiers want nothing less than the col-lected scalps of all the national park

Worst Facilities

The skiers complain that the world's finest natural skiing area is served by the world's worst facilities.

Skiing is the biggest thing to absorb family attention since the TV was invented. On weekends the highways of Alberta are choked with cars of skiers heading for the slopes. It is one sport in which all members of a family can participate, a fact westerners are only now discovering.

But skiing is so outlandishly expensive that to equip a family puts unbearable strains on the family finances. Nothing a skier buys ever comes in a large economy size. The brickbats being thrown at the Banff Park administrators may stem largely from depleted exchequers. Having gone into hock for $250 to get his family equipped and dressed, the harried citizen may become understandably annoyed when he then has to spend an hour waiting for a tow that will provide him with 15 minutes on the slopes.

In addition to curling and skiing, ating has been making a terrific come back and, of course, bowling has al-ways been big in western Canada. The latter, however, is suffering somewhat now because of the competition of the Sorriest victims of the participation sports binge, however, are the specta-tor sports. Professional hockey is dead. Minor league hockey is far from thriving, except in Saskatchewan. Basketball has never caught on as a spectator sport and wrestling is going rapidly downhill. Prairie people have become so busy

Pension Gamble

Mr. Bennett beams again with another bonanza worth two-and-a-half millions to 32,000 OAPs in B.C. while Ottawa dolefully drags its feet.

A recent federal article revealed that a grateful government is giving the old people who pioneered this country a big bonus on Old Age Security in raising the pension by 1968 to a munificent $1.50 per month as a maximum amount against the rising cost of living.

The people who have perpetrated this particular plan in Ottawa are our elect-ed representatives in the present govent who raised themselves from $12,000 to $18,000 a year. Moreover, it you care to commute your full old age pension of $75 due at age 70, you may have the option of taking $51 at age 65. Assuming that there never would be any increase in the amount paid at 70 under any future government then, if you start at 65, you have to die before age 80 to If you start at 70 you would have to live longer than 80 to win. Either way at age 80 you will have received $9,180 Uncluding the $1.50 cost of living aximum from age 70). On the other hand if you accept $51 at 65 you would not, according to the pension plan, rank for any future increase which might come along; you are stuck with what you have.

They may be a great deal less miserable if they are not freezing or starving, but they can scarcely be expected to achieve an ecstasy of joy because life has been made tolerable.

Happiness isn't created by such staples. It can be made by daubs of water-color or ribbles of crayon on a piece of cheap paper, if the product is taken home and given with love by a kindergarten child to its mother.

Nothing, I guess, is quite as shapeless or so widely varying in content. But happiness must, and it always will, take on form and character from the vessel which contains it, and the vessel is the individual, materially rich, poor or in between

By Dr. Walter Alvarez

Usually there is an increase in coughing with perhaps wheezing, and some pain in the chest. These symptoms of course are common with an ordinary cold, but then they soon If a cough does not clear up, and clear up. especially if it becomes severe and distressing and frequent, the person had better go quickly and get an X-ray film made of the lungs.

Heavy smokers are now asking me how they can tell when they get a cancer of the chest pain may become severe enough to bother the person. It is usually a persistent ache unrelated to the cough, and it is likely to be on the sid where the tumor is located. Blood in the sputum comes in only one out of 20 cases, but certainly anyone who coughs up ne blood should immediately have his lungs investigated.

Often the X-ray specialist can say from the shadows he sees in the lungs that there is cancer present. If it is in both lungs, obviously no surgery can be performed, because a man cannot part with both lungs. He can part with one lung and live. Sometimes in order to make a correct diagnosis of a very small can-cer, the expert must look down into the bronchi (tubes leading into and out of the lungs) with what is called a bronchoscope, a long tube electrically lighted. In other cases, a microscopic examination of the sputum that the man coughs up may show cancer cells.

When it comes to treatment, as I said, when a small tumor can be removed surgically, that is a good thing to do. Unfortunately, a third of the patients, when they come in for examination, have a tumor which already has spread or scattered (what is called metastasized). Then no surgery can be performed successfully, and the only hope is that X-rays or cobalt rays might help. Unfortunately, high percentage of lung tumors cannot be de stroyed with the help of radiation.

Fifty years ago cancer in the lung was rare disease, but now I read that last year in the United States some 43,000 persons died of it. More than 37,000 of these victims were men. The total death rate from cancer of Jung is now 10 times what it was in 1930, and the trend keeps going up and up.

Many people ask about bursitis. A bursa is a little sac containing an oily fluid. bursa that most often gives trouble is the one that lies under the muscle which caps the shoulder joint. Nature uses a bursa sometimes as a sort of pulley, so that a muscle can pull around a corner. Sometimes one of these little pulleys will become a bit inflamed, much as do the little sacs around joints when there is a flareup of arthritis.

Years ago, with X rays, I used to see calcified shoulder bursas, full of lime salts. those days surgeons used to cut out the calcified bursas. Then they stopped operating, be cause they found that commonly with the help of heat and massage and diathermy (treatment with an electric apparatus which drives heat into the interior of the body), many a bursa became normal again. People with a bursa under the shoulder muscle should keep using so that the shoulder joint will not

Christian missionaries of all denominations carried for a long time and still do carry much of the load of primary and secondary education in Nigeria.

Tens of thousands of government schools today, though, devour up to half the revenues of the hard-pressed administrations of the South Their brightest products, from beginning, have been helped by the British, in the homeland and in Britain, higher education on a scale never entered, into by any other colonial people.

For decades the nation's bencher or surgeon, elite, businessman or statesman found academic homes in Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh or Dublin. The newer product is just as apt to bring home his sheepskin — and now and then a wife—from Baltimore, New York, Rochester or To-

Cost Been High

The political climate of the North from the beginning understandably favored Koranie schools over the Christian academies; the cost in literacy may have been high.

In health as in education government institutions now outnumber missionary dispensaries and are coming to match them in quality of services. Staffing problems are appalling by Western standards; fewer than 1,500 qualified physicians are on hand to care for the smallpox, poliomyelitis, yaws, leprosy and other less spectacular ail-ments that afflict Nigerians.

The sparse ranks of trained Nigerians are swelled by missionaries, visiting educators on prolonged leave from their home medical schools, volun-teer visitors under such agencies as Medico and by special ists seconded from the British National Health Services.

Doctors Needed

One medical school, with a graduate training program, is in full operation at Ibadan, capital of the West. At Lagos, one hundred miles away, the Teaching Hospital, given help and good fortune, should turn out its own fully trained graduates inside of a decade. These are in the West; no medical school of any kind exists in the East or North. British, American and Cana dian universities increasing take a lively interest in Ni gerian medical education; the country keeps its political balance medical schools should be within reach inside of ten years at Kano and at Nsukka or Enugu in the East.

Even four flourishing medi cal schools manifestly are not likely to make much of an immediate dent in a problem of these dimensions; the Nierian in a remote village is likely for some time to consulf the professional descend ant of the ju-ju doctor who treated his great-grandfather's

Trivial Rivalries

A rudimentary acquainta with Nigeria's problems evokes a lively apprehension for her future. Much of her turmoil unquestionably stems from the claustrophobic hostility that rides with overpopulation everywhere. In such an atmosphere smoldering his toric tribal animosities are apt to flare up easily; in Nigeria religion tends to fan rather than smother the flames.

A good many Christian mis sions until recently were manned by Catholics from pre-ecumenical days and by equally uncompromising fun-damentalist Protestant sects. They tended to communicate Quittining manifements

If a Nasser-backed Moslen political drive, well-organized and well-financed, really lies back of Nigeria's recent and far from settled electoral troubles, the pages of her his tory about to be written may indeed resemble the bloody doings in the Congo.

This would seem to be by far the major threat to Nigeria; neither the Russian nor the Chinese Communists appear to have any appreciable political base in the country.

Nigeria's problems, lumper together, seem all but insur-mountable. Other newborn African nations with lesser problems have fallen over the edge into one-party govern-ment and the other ominous heginnings of authoritari-

Press Muzzled

Nigeria's press was muzzled by legislation last fall; this, coupled with her electoral problems, suggests on the surface that a Nigerian Nkrumah may be waiting in the wings with a copy of the Ghanaian constitution in his pocket even if the nation manages to ward off a fatal clash between the Moslem North and Christian South.

A number of factors suggest, though, that Nigeria may manage to dodge both horns of the dilemma. The people of both her major and minor strains are lively, intelligent and essentially amiable.

They will need continuing and perhaps increasing aid from the West until they can

Rex Harrison Won't Join Film Drop-Outs

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) - All school drop-outs have the same problem — finding a job suited to their ability.

Rex Harrison is one drop-out who seems to have solved the problem satisfactorily. Forty years after he quit the halls of learning at 16 to join a Liverpool repertory company, his services in a play or film now command a small fortune - or a large oné.

At 56, happily married to Pritish actress Rachel Roberts-and acclaimed for his performance in My Fair Lady, Rex is

What makes it so unusual is that all the original stamps on the specimens into his collection would seem to show that he lost interest in the hobby about the time he got the sheet. This being the case, it is rather extraordinary that it should have survived in good condition for so many years.

The first thing that strikes one today is that the stamps, which are all mint French colonials, were stuck onto the sheet by using their own gum!

Luckily, only a tiny dab of moisture had been applied to the centre of each stamp, so that most of them, if carefully lifted, are still in almost mint condition. (One must suppose that only junior selections would be mounted in this manner, for stamp "hinges" or mounts were commonly in use when the sheet was made up.)

The footlights glowed again under the great crimson curtains and Victoria's old Pantages Theatre, built in 1914, was re-born as the McPherson Playhouse. Friday night's opening was in the best traditions of theatreland—gracious, dignified and en-thusiastic—and it seemed to recall a bygone era of elegant living when going to the theatre was something of a social occasion.

A first-night audience of some 850 men and women—most of them in evening dress—filled every seat in the warm glowing auditorium and shared in the spirit of excited anticipation. which must have greeted every new theatre since Shakes-But this was more than a new theatre; it was part of

Victoria's history reincarnated in a new setting, with an imposing entrance and a spacious bright-lit foyer where firstnighters gathered in friendly groups during the interval. An hour before the lieutenant-governor arrived to open the playhouse, cars and faxis swept up to the front entrance and the privileged first nighters began to take their seats.

After the final curtain, they toasted the playhouse in champagne and lingered in friendly informal groups chatting er the highlights of the evening.

The women favored tiaras, furs and frills and corsage the ushers and eheekroom girls wore tartans, and gave out sprigs of heather with the McPherson tartan ribbon.

L. M. West, a veteran Empress Hotel doorman, greeted first-nighters in an elaborate new uniform. Pipers Opened Formalities

Formalities began with the reception of the lieutenant-governor at the entrance to the theatre by Mayor R. B. Wilson. Both were then piped to the stage by Pipe Major Frank Knight and Sgt. George Puritch, and the audience stood for the singing of The Queen and O Canada.

The theatre was officially opened with the cutting of the McPherson tartan ribbon, as it was strung across the stage,

by Mr. Pearkes.

"This magnificent new playhouse is in every sense a credit to Victoria," he said, "and it is of particular importance at this time, because we are entering an era when people

Mayor Tells McPherson Story

The mayor recalled that Mr. McPherson was once asked why he did not give away part of his estate during his lifetime so that he could witness the benefits.

"His reply was that he wished to keep control of his money while he lived in order to make it grow and thus have more to give away after his death."

Mayor Wilson said the city's share of the McPherson estate, including many charitable bequests, amounted to $2,800,000, in addition to the gift of the theatre.

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the Special Centennial Square Committee, noted that the McPherson Theatre is the second unit in Centennial Square to become functional.

He extended the city's thanks to all who participated in the restoration, notably architect Alan Hodgson and contractor R. A. Hall. Mr. Hall then turned over the keys of the building to Ald.

"Everything went as planned," said Playhouse manager Robert Ellison after the ceremony. "Of course, we had the usual anxiety over whether the theatre would be finished in But everyone put on a magnificent spurt at the end."

The theatre's air-conditioning apparatus caused some "It was blowing hot air this morning," one of the staff said, "and last night some people found it a little cold. But I'm sure we'll strike the right balance tonight."

The fact that the opening performance was a solo act. instead of a full-scale stage production evoked some criticism among the first-nighters. But the majority spoke highly of the versatile entertainment put on by Elsa Lanchester.

RED CROSS

Patients at the Veterans' Hospital, their families and friends are enthusiastic about the facilities provided at Red Cross Lodge, the centre adjacent to the hospital. There, out-of-town visitors may stay while visiting patients. Meals and snacks are served and recreation facilities provided, all helping to bring a feeling of home to the veterans and their families. Seen leaving the popular centre are, left to right, Mr. C. There may be some mixed feelings about the red maple leaf on Canada's new flag but there's no dissension when it comes to the Red Cross flag. The service it represents is too widely known to carrie criticism.

On Monday, volunteers will begin a month-long drive for funds to carry out the next year's commitments. This year's target for the Greater Victoria area is $82,000 and officials of the Victoria City and District Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society are confident that it will be met. Although the Red Cross symbol soars to its greatest heights during times of disaster, it represents a year-round service that has rarely been equalled by any other organization.

Through the blood donor service, 2,507 patients at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's the property of the prope

Hospital and Veterans' Hospital received help this year, a total of 6,405 bottles being donated through local clinics.

This year saw the local branch going to the assistance of people made homeless through the Alberni Valley flood. Elderly Victorians were provided with sickroom supplies. Girl Guides, other groups and individuals were trained in home nursing care and volunteers cheered veteran patients with regular hospital visits.

Families who had lost their homes through fires were helped, needy families were assisted and shut-ins benefited from the Red Cross home makers service.

To enumerate the many activities of the local branch is virtually impossible—they're too numerous and varied. It is enough to know that the whole community benefits from the branch's

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

We're not one of those gushing people who's and to be carried away by everything that comes along but here is something new that leaves us practically speechess with admiration. It's the new department at Home Furniture Company which they've named "The Gallery". and it's chock full of the most beautiful, soul-satisfying furniture we've ever feasted our eyes upon! Imported occasional furniture and suites in Victorian and period designs, reproduced by hand. by true craftsmen in the cabinet making art. The grains and polishes of the woods. the colors and textures of upholstery fabrics. are exquisitely beautiful. There are chests of drawers in rich swirl mahogany, banded and inlaid... console tables with hand painted Battersea porcelain pulls. A mahogany hunt table that would be a conversation piece in any home coffee tables, commodes, marble top tables. drum tables. The most charming settees, chairs and love seats. The ladies' and gentlemen's armchairs, hand-carved solid mahogany, with lovely velvet coverings positively make us drool. For everyone, who knows and appreciates fine furniture. The Gallery is simply not to be missed!... Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Fashion-conscious Japanese women can now buy tooth colorings in 25 shades to match their fingernails and gowns. Colors range from pearl to pink through violet.

Stepping out with Mr. Easton . . .

The prettiest, gayest shoes in town have arrived at Munday's. the brand new "Mr. Easton" shoes. (new only to us, of course, because we understand they're tops in popularity South of the Border). We had a close-up of Munday's spring collection this week. .. and can only urge you to go and do likewise. .. To begin with, these shoes are beautifully made, and fit like a dream .. Styles are graceful and imaginative, with all the new features you've been reading about in the fashion stories. .. the light airy feel .. with cut-outs and straps .. gently rounded toes .. the heel-heights we've learned to love, but with a new 1965 look! ... Lots of patents in jet black, a bone shade called white lightening .. sparkling navy patent .. Striking colors in kids, including raspberry, red, vellow, light and royal blues, bone, avocado .. There's an elegant pump with a hand-whipped top-line .. a beautifully curvy plain pump called "Vanity" which is pure flattery .. In black patent, it's the ideal shoe to underlie the new spring prints ... These Mr. Easton shoes strike a fresh new foot-note .. All models come at the same price $28.95 .. exclusive to Munday's, 1203 Government St., EV 3-2211.

Favorite fabrics in the Paris spring collection were floating chiffons, mousselines and light crepes in the silks. In wools, designers preferred smooth surfaced fabrics like gabardine or frothy, texture tweeds in water-color tones.

Designer Don Loper, of Beverly Hills, describes the truly chic woman this way: "She wears the same hairdo, skirt length, perfume, the same all-woman look and the same husband as the has for the past decade because she knows it is these individual and distinctive things which set her apart."

Masculine suits you'll feel proud to walk beside . . .

The shape of her glasses should dramatize, not hide the individuality of a woman's eyes, says a famous team of frame designers. The color of your frames, they add, should be used to accentuate, to compliment or to contrast your natural

Knits know no season . . .

The more we see of clothes, the more we're convinced that a good, well-fitted knit is perhaps the most indispensable item in an active woman's wardrobe . . It'll see one smartly through practically any occasion that doesn't call-for formal dress . . New at Mary Constance are some really beautiful Italian knits by Jonfel . . a name that stands for meticulous styling and workmanship . . This is the sort of dress you could buy to give your spirits a lift now . . then wear right through the spring and into summer . There's a mint green one-piecer with narrow frilis right down the front, and edging the cuffs . Also comes in pale pink . . A two-piece suit we like buttons high to the neck with a little looped wool collar, and matching cuffs . pink, yellow or pale blue . . We notice that many of the new knits have dressier touches . . like crocheted collars or edging . dainty scalloping . . embroidery . There are several attractive navy knits, one with double breasted jacket, striped top, brass buttons . Another beauty teams a mink-colored blazer with cream and mink striped blouse and skirt . These new knits range in price from $69.95 to $119.95 . quite modest, really! . . . Mary Constance, 784 Fort St., EV 3-4932.

Save up your discarded nylons until you have a fair size pile . . . then cut them up and use for filling a small pillow or cushion. Frequent washings will make the nylon filling fluffier and more buoyant.

Never a worry when Cantin's move you . . .

A rose is a rose is a rose ... but a mover is not a mover a mover a mover ... No indeed! ... It takes a great deal of know know and experience and savvy ... not to mention a real gentleness, and respect for fine possessions ... to make a moving firm masters of their trade ... instead of just mere heavers and haulers of heavy pieces ... And what are we leading up to? Just that Cantin's are everything we described above ... They're past masters in the fine art of moving ... have the training and equipment to do a moving job carefully, quickly, and expeditiously ... When Cantin's pack, it's done to perfection (one of their men has for years specialized in packing and crating antiques and precious, fragile articles of all kinds) ... We heard recently that in long distance moving, Cantin's get a lower claim rate than practically any other firm in the industry ... and in the moving industry, this seems to be some kind of criterion of excellence ... You just ought to see all the letters that come in To Cantin's from satisfied customers! ... "Care" "courtesy" and "efficiency" are words that are repeated time after time! ... So if you've a moving coming up ... across the continent, or across the street ... call ... Cantin's Moving & Storage, 742 Pembroke St., EV 53476.

Many of the first-nighters came early to admire the attractive decor of the new theatre. Handsome souvening programs commemorating the affair were in high demand. Here, Mr. John Goult, third from right, shares his program with, left to right, Mrs. C. D. Stockdill, Mr. Stockdill, Mrs. Goult, Mrs. Clyde Savage and Mr. Savage.

Guests streamed up and down the spacious stairway leading to the upper fover. This happy group had nothing but admiration for the 'face-lifting' of the new civic centre. They are, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bramley, Mr. and Mrs. Archie McKinnon and Mr. and Mrs.

OPENING NIGHT

It was a night for sparkle, Friday, when Victorians turned out in full force for the opening of the McPherson Playhouse. There were glistening jewels and tiaras which placed second Dinner Party only to the magnificent decorations of the new theatre.

To mark the occasion, many of the women guests donned formal gowns and their best furs.

And, when the performance was over, there was sparkling champagne to make it truly a night to remember.

Mysterious Orient Adds Exotic Notes

By PENNY SAVER

While cleaning cobwebs and dirt away from the hanging light in the dining room the other day, Penny slipped and knocked the fixture to the floor. The glass shattered, the metal bent, and I almost screamed! Not only was it an awful mess to clear up, but the breakage left me with one naked little light bulb set over my dining room table.

Oute disbeartened by this catastrophe, I went searching for a new light cover to fill the place of the broken one and discovered some light, bright coverings to highlight any room.

These are of a light, white translucent paper. Sound in triguing? Well, they are of an Oriental design and the paper, unless knecked heavily with a sharp or heavy object, will not break.

The annual flushing of watermains within the City of Victoria and the Municipality of Esquimalt will be programmed between March 1 and March 31, 1965. This may cause temporary but harmless discoloration of water. Any consumer to whom color of water supplied (such as laundry) is of vital importance will be notified in advance of operations in his vicinity if a request for such notification is received at the office of the undersigned, City Hall, Victoria, Tel. EV 5-5711. In no case, however, can the City accept responsibility for any damage arising out of the use of discolored water. Consumers are therefore advised to be on the alert for temporary discoloration.

Most significant of the bills up for second reading was Recreation and Conservation Minister Kiernan's nine-page 'Act Respecting Parks,' a package into which is packed the makings of much debate. It iseems to me that a great deal will depend on the manact's bold and sweeping terms are administered.

Much good may come for some of its sections-notably those which deal with our smaller parks—but in the case of what I once naively believed to be inviolable wilderness tracts, I do not find the prospect reassuring.

The explanation offered to the House by slim, grey Ken Kier-nan in a lengthy policy state-ment doesn't alter the tragic fact of Stratheona; nor, some how, does the proposed Parks Act sit well with Lands and Forest Minister Williston's recent prophecy of an eventual

GRACIOUS, DIGNIFIED OPENING

Credit to Victoria

The footlights glowed again under the great crimson curtains and Victoria's old Pantages Theatre, built in 1914, was re-born as the McPherson Playhouse,

Friday night's opening was in the best tradi-tions of theatreland reficious, dignified and enthusiastic-and it seemed to recall a bygone era of elegant living when going to the theatre was something of a social occasion.

A first-night audience of some 850 men and women most of them in evening dress—filled every seat in the warm glowing auditorium and shared in the spirit of excited anticipation which must have greeted every new theatre since Shakes

But this was more than a new theatre; it was part of Victoria's history reincarnated in a new setting, with an imposing entrance and a spacious bright-lit toyer where firstnighters gathered in friendly groups during the interval.

An hour before the lieutenant-governor arrived to open the playhouse, ears and taxis swept up to the front entrance and the privileged first nighters began to take their seats. After the final curtain, they toasted the playhouse in champagne and lingered in friendly informal groups chatting over the highlights of the evening. The women favored tiaras, furs and frills and corsages; the ushers and checkroom girls wore tartans, and gave out sprigs of heather with the McPherson tartan ribbon.

L. M. West, a veteran Empress Hovel doorman, greeted first-nighters in an elaborate new unifo

Pipers Opened Formalities

Formalities began with the reception of the lieutenant-governor at the entrance to the theatre by Mayor R. B. Wilson. Both were then piped to the stage by Pipe Major Frank Knight and Sgt. Georgé Puritch, and the audience stood for the singing of The Queen and O Canada.

The theatre was officially opened with the cutting of the McPherson tartan ribbon, as it was strung across the stage.

This magnificent new playhouse is in every sense a credit to Victoria," he said, "and it is of particular importance at this time, because we are entering an era when people have more and more leisure.

'The cultural influence of a good theatre is vital to a community. Take advantage of this good thing. Make it a moving force. It is your theatre and you should use it to the greatest advantage."

Mr. Pearkes laughed as he snipped the McPherson ribbon with a pair of scissors; then in bold forthright tones said:

"I declare the McPherson Playhouse open."

Archdeacon J. W. Forth immediate past-president of the Archaeacon 3. Which in includes passificated the theatre with a prayer in which he said:

Mayor Wilson spoke of his pride in the theatre as a civic venture which would develop community interest in local talent and attract famous productions which have tended to bypass Victoria in recent years. "The great-heartedness and generosity of Thomas Shanks

McPherson has made all this possible," the mayor said, and I am sure it would have met with his approval. I only wish be could have been with us tonight."

Mayor Tells McPherson Story

The mayor recalled that Mr. McPherson was once asked why he did not give away part of his estate during his lifetime so that he could witness the benefits.

"His reply was that he wished to keep control of his money while he lived in order to make it grow and thus have more to give away after his death."

Mayor Wilson said the city's share of the McPherson estate, including many charitable bequests, amounted to $2,800,000, in addition to the gift of the theatre.

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the Special Centennial

Square Committee, noted that the McPherson Theatre is the second unit in Centennial Square to become functional. He extended the city's thanks to all who participated in the restoration, notably architect Alan Hodgson and con-Mr. Hall then turned over the keys of the building to Ald.

"Everything went as planned," said Playhouse manager Robert Ellison after the ceremony. "Of course, we had the usual anxiety over whether the theatre would be finished in

But everyone put on a magnificent spurt at the end." The theatre's air-conditioning apparatus caused some 'It was blowing hot air this morning," one of the staff said, "and last night some people found it a little cold. But, I'm sure we'll strike the right balance tonight." The fact that the opening performance was a solo act instead of a full-scale stage production evoked some criticism among the first-nighters. But the majority spoke highly of the versatile entertainment put on by Elsa Lanchester.

Meanwhile, Friday was grab-bag day for a House given over to legislation.

Most significant of the bills up for second reading was Recreation and Conservation Minister Klernan's nine-page 'Act Respecting Parks,' a package into which is packed the makings of much debate.

It seems to me that a great deal will depend on the manner and spirit in which this act's bold and sweeping terms re administered.

Much good may come from some of its sections—notably those which deal with our smaller parks-but in the case of what I once naively lieved to be inviolable wilderness tracts, I do not find the prospect reassuring.

The explanation offered to the House by slim, grey Ken Kiernan in a lengthy policy state ment doesn't alter the tragic fact of Strathcona; nor, how, does the proposed Parks Act sit well with Lands and Forest Minister Williston's cent prophecy of an eventual Continued on Page 2
